A member of the Litigation Department, Jamie represents clients in all aspects of litigation, from investigation of disputes through discovery, trial, and appeal. She has substantial experience in state and federal courts, as well as in alternative dispute resolution avenues such as mediation.

Her practice focuses on commercial disputes, where she has assisted both small and large businesses in achieving their goals through strategic litigation decisions. She also handles probate court matters, as well as litigation and advising related to the privacy and data security requirements for the ever-increasing amounts of information held by companies. Jamie is a Certified Information Privacy Professional/United States (CIPP/US).

Jamie joined Morse in 2015 after working for several years at a prominent Boston firm. During law school, Jamie interned with Judge Patti Saris of the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts, and participated in the Summer Honors Program at the Securities and Exchange Commission.
