As part of the Corporate Practice Group, Sebastian focuses on mergers & acquisitions, venture capital, and general corporate governance, bringing a fresh perspective to the intricacies of modern corporate law. A native Spanish speaker, Sebastian has experience assisting both domestic and Latin American clients in their corporate matters.

During law school, Sebastian was a law clerk at Morse, engaging in a variety of corporate transactions across diverse industries. He quickly established himself as a key asset within the corporate team, utilizing his keen analytical skills and effective communication approach to assist clients in navigating the complexities of M&A and venture capital transactions. His proficiency in both English and Spanish has been instrumental in catering to a diverse clientele and allows him to merge his passion for international business and law.

Sebastian's expertise extends beyond transactional matters, as he provides clients with sound advice and strategic guidance in an effort to anticipate potential legal challenges.

Prior to his time at Morse, Sebastian also served as a judicial intern for the Honorable Frank D. Whitney for the Western District of North Carolina and represented clients as a student-attorney in corporate formation and trademark registration.
