July 11, 2024

Morse is pleased to announce iRacing, the world leader in the online racing simulation and gaming market, has partnered with Original Fire Games to develop a new racing game set to release in 2025. The partnership on this new product will allow iRacing to expand into other niches in the race gaming market and cultivate new racing enthusiasts to grow their future player base for their simulations.

The new game is set to build upon the infrastructure of Circuit Superstars, which is Original Fire Games' current release. They aim to take the driving experience to the next level by offering a diverse package of racing offerings geared towards users of all ages. The development of the new game will be led by the Original Fire Games team, while iRacing supports the development and design with their advanced experience and technology.

Morse attorney Mike Cavaretta served as counsel to iRacing in this transaction.

Additional details on the partnership with Original Fire Games can be found in iRacing's press release.
