Morse Serves as Counsel to Sona in Series Seed Financing

September 15, 2026

Morse is pleased to announce that Sona, a technology platform that allows expecting parents to access and share their ultrasound images, has received an investment from Launchpad Venture Group alongside other notable investors in the healthcare and technology sectors. The investment will support Sona's continued mission to help families more easily access, share, and preserve meaningful moments throughout the pregnancy journey.

Sona is dedicated to helping families better experience and preserve memories during the early stages of pregnancy. Its technology integrates directly with ultrasound machines, allowing parents to access and share ultrasound images and videos directly from their phones. The platform offers a seamless, user-friendly experience for both patients and providers, helping make it easier to share these special moments with loved ones.

Morse attorneys Scott Bleier and Elizabeth Resteghini served as counsel to Sona in this transaction.

> Scott and Liz said, "We were thrilled to work with the Sona team on this transaction and to support a company with such a thoughtful and meaningful mission. Sona is creating an innovative way for families to access, share, and preserve some of the most special moments of pregnancy, and it was a pleasure to be part of this next stage of the company's growth."
