

Alternative Dispute Resolution

When Litigation Is Not Your Best Option

Sometimes litigation may not be the best method of resolution for a particular dispute, whether due to issues of confidentiality, resources, timing, or the particular nature of the issue in question.

When that happens, in addition to long experience in protecting our client's interests in court actions, our litigators are well-versed in the various forms of alternative dispute resolution available today, and know well the advantages and disadvantages of each. Our litigators have extensive experience representing clients in a wide range of mediations and arbitrations, from breaches of contract and licensing issues to internal family disputes covering the division of estate or trust assets. Our experience includes clients large and small, domestic and international, including mediations and arbitrations for clients from France, Sweden, and Germany.

Team

Scott R. Magee

John J. Tumilty

Paige K. Zacharakis